

Panel to discuss school restorations

The future of Blodgett Elementary School and the old Central High School in Syracuse will be the focus of a panel discussion at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Onondaga Historical Association museum and research center, 321 Montgomery St.

Despite big dreams for both landmark buildings, several potential renovation plans have stalled. The possibility — and practicality — of restoration will be analyzed by a panel during the discussion.

The free discussion, coordinated by the OHA and PACNY, is part of an expansive museum exhibit that looks at the history of Syracuse high schools. The event will be moderated by Sean Kirst, a Post-Standard columnist. The public is welcome.
