

Curator to talk about Piercefield mansions

An illustrated lecture on the Piercefield neighborhood of Solvay will be presented at 2 p.m. Sunday at Solvay Public Library by Dennis Connors, curator of history at Onondaga Historical Association.

Solvay's Piercefield neighborhood showcases mansions on the former Hazard family estate built in the late 1800s and known as Upland Farm. Frederick Hazard, former president of the Solvay Process Co., contributed land and resources to the village, including the lot for the Solvay Public Library.

The talk is free.
